I had a nightmare...

I dreamed that I paid $5.00 for a haircut and $50.00 for a pair of cardboard shoes. I dreamed that we had no wartime controls on prices, profits or wages, and that we hadn't had the sense to organize the distribution of supplies all the way down the line...

I dreamed that because everyone was making more money and spending it, prices were skyrocketing.

all the stores looked like "fire" sales... with people scrambling to buy before prices went still higher...

panicky people were buying things they didn't need, and hoarding everything they could get their hands on...

I dreamed that everybody had to fight to get more money... and that in this mad race, wages and salaries were falling behind.

I dreamed the hand of everyone was against his neighbour, with each of us blaming the other fellow for his troubles.

with everybody for himself... no matter what it cost in the long run... and no matter how it hurt the war effort.

THEN, THANK GOODNESS—I WOKE UP!

to realize with relief that I live in a country where things are sane and stable... where the cost of living has been kept within bounds.

to realize that prices and wages—production costs and selling prices—are inseparably linked together.

to realize that without the safeguards that have headed off inflation, my nightmare might have become a reality!

to remind myself that the danger is still pressing and that we must continue to hold firm... and that means everybody must play fair and do his part by not trying to get some temporary, fancied advantage at the expense of his fellow-Canadians.

This advertisement is one of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing further increases in the cost of living now and deflation later.

The City Of London

THE CITY OF LONDON is frequently called "the heart of the Empire," and it is best known to the majority of people as the scene of many historic events, and as the home of the British Parliament. London is, indeed, a city of great historic interest, but it is also an important industrial centre, and a busy port. In the years before the war, the value of goods brought into Britain through the port of London, was greater than that brought into any other sea port in the United Kingdom. The city's industrial output was also great in the pre-war period, when it comprised almost one-quarter of the industrial production of the United Kingdom. A highly developed port and industrial city, London has also been known for centuries as one of the great financial centres of the world.

Plans Are Made For Rebuilding

The ancient "city" of London has its own corporate existence, dating from mediaeval times. It has an area of only 677 acres and a population of about 9,000. This is the domain of the Lord Mayor, whose title originated in the year 1191. Around the "city" are grouped the various districts making up Greater London, which has a population of more than 8,000,000. The great industrial expansion of London in the last twenty years has given rise to many problems of housing, recreation and transport. Before the war, extensive measures were being taken to provide for construction and development. Bomb damage has caused these projects to be greatly expanded, and much thought is now being put into plans for reconstruction.

History Rich In Tradition

From earliest times, London has been closely associated with the history of Britain and of the Empire. Most people of British origin like to think of it as a great centre of national culture, and to dwell on its association with the past. It has a history which is rich in interest and tradition, and in spite of the heavy damage done by German bombs, most of its famous landmarks still remain. Its treasures in the realms of art and literature are also preserved for coming generations. However, the London of the future will be a city from which slum areas have been cleared, to be replaced by well-planned housing projects. Further industrial development is anticipated, and it is expected that the progress of the last twenty years will continue when the war is ended. The progress of the last men and women from Canada and other parts of the Empire, have visited London during the past four years and have come to know it well. We are living in a world of changing values and shifting political concepts, but when the war is ended, London will still remain "the heart of the Empire."

Consider The Onion

Scientists Discover That This Vegetable Is Good For You

It is odd that scientists have just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that onions are good for you. The scientists have found in the onion what news despatches call a "mysterious bacteria-destroying substance" which operates in different fashion from other recently discovered substances.

This may have been a mystery to grandma, too, but sufficient for her was the knowledge that steak smothered with fried onions was better for her men folks than a visit to the doctor.

In recent years, with vitamins running from A to G in vogue, the onion has suffered from comparison with other vegetables. In any table of values it ranked far below such vegetables as kale and broccoli and carrots. Onions, it seemed, were long on flavor and short on vitamins. The most recent discovery provides the explanation: the onion has been packed so full of valuable medicaments that there was no room for vitamins.—New York Sun.

There are only two large cities in Burma—Rangoon with 500,000 people and Mandalay with 163,000.

STEADY NERVES ARE A BIG HELP TO GOOD LOOKS!

How in the world can a woman have charm and poise if she feels "all wound up" with nervous tension? Only the calm, strong nerves actually give a woman poise and quiet nerves take the hard, tense look from her facial muscles. If nerves bother, treat them with rest, wholesome food, fewer activities, plenty of sunshine and fresh air. In the meantime take a nerve sedative... Dr. Miles Nerve Tonic'.

Just A Hobby

Hitler Looked On War As Merely A Huge Game

Max Werner, in writing of Hitler's many terrible blunders, has this to say of Hitler: "It was his personal war, his hobby. He had to taste it to the full. For Hitler the war was not a gamble, but also a game, a huge game with its soldiers. Nothing is more characteristic of Hitler than his remark to Sir Neville Henderson, shortly before the attack on Poland: 'I prefer war when I am fifty to when I am fifty-five or sixty.' It is a psychology, not of a general, but of a playboy for whom the war game is a personal pleasure."

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Friends should not be chosen to flatter. The quality we should prize is that rectitude which will shrink from no truth.—Channing.

A friend should be one in whose understanding and virtue we can equally confide, and whose opinion we can value at once for its justice and its sincerity.—Robert Hall.

There are three friendships which are advantageous: friendship with the upright, with the sincere, and with the man of much observation.—Confucius.

Let friendship creep gently to a height; if it rushes to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Fuller.

Never contract the horizon of a worthy outlook by the selfish exaction of all another's time and thoughts.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Every man will have something to do for his friend, and something to hear from him. Only the sober man can do the first; and for the latter, patience is requisite.—Felt-ham.

ANCIENT IMPLEMENTS
More than 600 fine specimens of ancient implements—quartzite as-sagel heads and stone tools—have been discovered near Johannesburg, South Africa. Archaeologists believe they are of the middle stone age, 60,000 to 10,000 B.C.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—I had my dinner in a restaurant and when I asked for another order of butter they refused to give it to me. Is this right?
A.—The restaurant was correct in refusing you. No second orders of butter, tea or coffee are allowed. Each person should have no more than three lumps of sugar upon request.

Q.—I am enclosing ration book No. 4 which my son received when the new books were issued. He has now joined the army. Was I right in sending the book to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, or should I have sent it to his army headquarters?

A.—Your son will not require this ration book in the army and you were quite correct in returning it. When he has leave, he will be issued special ration cards.

Q.—My daughter was 12 years old one week after ration book No. 4 was distributed. How can I get tea and coffee coupons for her?

A.—If she was 12 years of age on or before April 13th the tea and coffee coupons should have been issued to her book when issued. If they were removed we would advise you to get a new book. However, any child who becomes 12 years of age after April 13th must wait until another ration book is issued to be eligible for tea or coffee coupons.

Q.—Can a blacksmith raise the price of shoeing from 25 cents to 50 cents and of a new shoe from 50 cents to 75 cents?

A.—No, a blacksmith cannot legally increase his charges above the prices he charged for the same services during the basic period in 1941, unless he has received specific permission to do so.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Meet In Italy

Brothers From England Have Served In Widely Separated Places

A Shirley soldier now in the Middle East was riding on a truck down an Italian road when suddenly it came to a halt, reports the Birmingham Mail. Another soldier on foot walked round to the back to investigate the truck's contents. "Eh, you," he said to the lolling Tommy, "move up there and let's see what you've got." Languidly the man in the truck turned round and then nearly fell out as he exclaimed "Good heavens, Norman, where did you spring from?" They were brothers. Their names are Sergeant Syd and Corporal Norman Roberts, of Cranmore Road, Shirley, serving with the R.A.S.C. The sergeant enlisted in January, 1940, and the corporal in September, 1938. The former was in France, Iraq, and Egypt before moving across North Africa and so into Sicily, while the other, after being posted to Egypt in 1939, saw service at El Alamein, Tobruk and Crete. They had not met since the outbreak of war.

VANISHING VITAMIN

The vanishing vitamin is "C". It's the delicate member of the family... when the heat's on it blows! Take extra special care to keep brother "C" in good shape by not exposing him to heat for long. For instance when you add canned tomatoes or tomato juice to meat soup wait a short time before serving to do so.

IT'S WORTH A PATCH

The material around a tear is often so thin that a patch is better economy than a darn. Cut the fabric to a square or oblong with the thread and trim off the weak part. Clip the corners so they may be turned under. Pin the patch material under the opening, matching the grain both lengthwise or crosswise. Turn under the raw edges of the hole and hem to the patch. Now turn on the wrong side, turn the edges of this patch under and sew it down to the garment.

Palace Of The Soviets

Largest Building In The World Will Be Erected In Moscow

The gigantic Pentagon building in Washington which houses a multitude of office staffs connected with the war effort is the subject of many jokes about people getting lost and search parties having to be sent out to look for them. It is the largest office building in the United States—and that doubtless means in the world—and the United States also boasts the tallest building in the world, which is the Empire State building. When the war is over the United States will lose both these distinctions. The huge Palace of the Soviets will be erected in Moscow. The designer is not an American nor a Russian. He is an Englishman, who happened to be working in the United States when he entered for Premier Stalin's prize of about $7,000. He is back in London, where he has been the architect of many factories and large blocks of apartments. His name is Hector O. Hamilton, a native of Worthing, a little town on the English Channel. He is 40 years of age and the son of a doctor.

The Soviet Government placed no limit on the cost of the building, with the result that the competitors could give free play to their fancies. Mr. Hamilton's palace is designed to cost around $75,000,000, and covers an area of about 30 acres on the bank of the Moscow river. Its main feature is an auditorium seating 24,000 people and a smaller one for 6,000. It will measure 1,600 feet by 450, and will chiefly be supported on massive columns with a diameter of 16 feet sunk 60 feet in the ground. It will be over 80 stories high, and have its own subway station on the ground floor. There will be 60 elevators and 60 escalators.

Over 1,000 architects in 70 countries competed for the honor. Mr. Hamilton completed his designs in six months, and when they were ready they were shipped to Moscow in a crate 15 feet long. At present he is designing war factories in Britain, and in his spare time he draws up plans for what he considers should be model British cities of the future.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Women's Army Corps

Standard Equipment

Wheelbarrow Has Always Held An Important Place On Farm

Our favorite hardware store says that a boom in wheelbarrows is one of the encouraging signs of the times. It's a boom which has been growing since people gave up pleasure riding and began to discover the joys of working around one's home. A man needs a wheelbarrow.

A wheelbarrow is a simple piece of equipment: a box with removable sides, a wheel in front, and two shafts. But one can sense the epochal achievement of that day, centuries gone, when man first harnessed a single wheel to his use. It's always been a standard part of farm equipment, but now that some 20 million city, suburban, and town dwellers are co-operating in the Victory Garden program, the wheelbarrow is coming into its own as an important adjunct to home-centered urban living. Besides, think of the fun of giving Betsy and Bobbie a ride to the garage when the work's done.—Christian Science Monitor.

SMILE AWHILE

"So you have married the queen of your heart?"

"Yes, and today she made the first speech from the throne."

"The new washwoman has stolen two of our towels."

"The thief! Which ones, dear?"

"The ones we got from the hotel in Montreal."

Rookie—Do I get any choice of food here in camp?

Mess Sergeant—Sure do, buddy! Either you eat it or you don't.

Plump Girl—My mother says I'm growing beautiful.

Brute (regarding her)—You mean beautifully.

Professor—Well, I hope that lesson is perfectly clear.

Student—Yeh, clear as mud.

Professor (absently)—Well, that covers the ground.

"I hope, dear, that you get up when you are called," wrote the fond mother to her boy in the army, "and don't keep the regiment waiting breakfast for you."

Officer—What's the big idea? What are you men doing climbing trees and crawling through the bushes?

Private—Well, sir, we camouflaged the gun before lunch and now we can't find it.

Wife (having a stiff)—Anyhow you borrowed ten pounds from father the night you proposed.

Husband—Well, he looked so pleased when I asked him for you that I simply couldn't resist it.

"Why didn't you interfere to stop the defendant when you saw the fight?" said the magistrate to a witness.

"I didn't know which was the defendant," the witness answered.

After a very thorough examination the army doctor eyed the tall and very thin recruit in silence.

"Well, doctor," said the recruit at last, "how do I stand?"

"Goodness knows," replied the M.O. "It's a miracle."

Speaker—I have lived in this town all my life. By actual count there are 53 taprooms and saloons in the town, and I am proud to say I have never been in one of them.

Voice—Which one is that?

Neighbor (looking over garden fence): "Have your bees done well this year, Brown?"

Brown: "Well, they haven't given much honey, but they've stung my mother-in-law twice."

Travelling salesman—You make a small deposit, then pay nothing for six months.

Cheap Skates—Who told you about me?

A War Memorial

Church Of St. Clement Dances In London Seems Best Fitted

The following is from the Ottawa Journal's London Letter:

It will strike most people as a happy suggestion that London should follow the example of Plymouth and leave one of its blitzed churches as it stands by way of a memorial to German culture.

If the proposal is adopted, as it most likely may be, there are unfortunately only too many ruined churches from which to choose as this permanent reminder. But one that will appeal as the ideal memorial is surely St. Clement Dances, the charred and blasted stone shell of which stands gaunt and tragic near the Law Courts. St. Clement Dances is famous as one of the "island churches" of the Strand, and its bells in happier days used to play that favorite old nursery tune, "Oranges and Lemons," the refrain of which is believed to date right back to the era of Viking invasions, and the great battle which once raged in Mid-Thames at old London Bridge.

In the tiny churchyard at the east end of the church, now heaped with tumbled masonry, stands the effigy of Dr. Samuel Johnson, tome in hand, amidst the roaring traffic of the Strand, which he always declared to represent "the high tide of London life." St. Clement's would certainly make the ideal memorial, but pity is that Dr. Johnson could not have composed, as only he could, a Latin tribute to Teutonic barbarism.

Work Just Started

Discoverer Of Penicillin Believes It Has Great Future

Penicillin will save more lives than the war will destroy, and by now can be produced in such quantity that it is going to become available for civilians. Dr. Alexander Fleming, its discoverer, believes many more important developments will come out of it, and that the work of penicillin has only just begun. He is quoted as saying, "It would be strange indeed if the first one discovered remained the best."

A FRIENDLY WORLD

This is a good world. We need not approve of all the items in it, nor of all the individuals in it, but the world itself—which is more than its parts or individuals, which has a soul, a spirit, a fundamental relation to each of us deeper than all other relations—is a friendly world.—Jan C. Smuts, 1934.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Hush Money

—By—

WILLIAM A. ROSSI

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The silent house echoed the monotone of Emma's rocking chair. He rocked thoughtfully, puffing viciously on his aged corncob. For the fifth time in the last hour he looked up at the cuckoo clock on the wall. He winced at the slow advancement of the hands. In another couple of hours the annual Bazaar would be over, and then there'd be a whole year until the next one.

"Dagnabbit!" Gramp growled to himself. "Emma's kids is old 'nough not to need someone to mind 'em on an evening."

Yet, as much as Gramp wanted to go to the Bazaar he knew that Emma had set her heart on it, too. Gramp's son-in-law, Henry, intended to stay home, but at the last minute he called to say that he had to work overtime. Gramp took one look at Emma's expression of disappointment and grumped that he'd stay. "If you don't intend to keep your word," Emma said, "let me know right now. You know how the neighbors complained about the children's howling last week when we stepped out and left them alone in the house for only a few minutes."

"Dagnabbit!" Gramp spumed. "When I was their age it didn't bother me none to be left alone in the dark. These fraidy-cat kids nowadays—" "I'll stay home, then," Emma said with a suffering sigh. "Hush up and off with you!" Gramp snapped, unable to bear his daughter's look of martyrdom. And in fifteen minutes Emma was off.

The first hour was easy. Bazzara weren't so important, anyway. Gramp kept telling himself. Besides, it was the same thing year after year. With the second hour, however, he began to reflect upon the past: The fun of poking around through the booths, the concert, the door prize, and the various antics that deepened the laugh wrinkles around Gramp's merry old eyes.

When the cuckoo derisively popped out at nine-thirty Gramp jerked up with defiance and wobbled about the room until his rheumatic joints guaranteed stability. He started to get his coat and hat from the closet when he heard a wall from upstairs. He huffed and stamped an irate foot on the floor. Well, maybe it was just as well. If Emma saw him at the Bazaar she'd have a fit; probably make a scene in front of everyone.

Fifteen minutes more of waiting and Gramp's resigned attitude had once more been discarded. Caution was with the winds now. Besides, in that crowd Emma would never see him. Just a few minutes of poking around—for old times' sake. Gramp had his hat and coat on now. And then that wall again.

"Dagnabbit!" he growled, his glance wavering between the front door and the upper story. The noise increased. Gramp slammed down his hat with another "Dagnabbit!" and went upstairs. Five minutes later he came down again and donned his crumpled felt hat, a mischievous grin on his face. He tiptoed from the silent house.

Gramp bought his Bazaar ticket and received his door-prize stub. He cautiously peeped into the main hall. Soon he spied the flaming red hat that belonged to Emma. Gramp chuckled, then slunk around to the opposite side of the hall.

The next half hour was a simple man's paradise for Gramp. It was good to see old faces, familiar exhibits and hear laughing chatter. Nothing really exciting, but good wholesome fun.

And then the hall was suddenly hushed as a man's voice came through the microphone on the stage. The door prize, Gramp hadn't given it any thought, so absorbed had he been. He stood up, and located the red hat again. He chortled to himself, for he was successfully keeping safe distance between himself and Emma. He'd leave shortly, getting home just before her. Everything was going smoothly.

The man called out a number. No one answered. He called it again. Gramp casually extracted his stub from his pocket, keeping one eye on Emma. Then Gramp glimpsed at the number on his stub. He blinked, for he wasn't sure what number had been called. The man waited impatiently a second, then announced the number once more. Sure enough, Gramp had it.

He squirmed miserably. If he answered the call it meant Emma's nagging wrath for weeks. And if he kept quiet the door-prize would go elsewhere. The man on the stage started to reach in for another number.

"I got it!" squealed Gramp. He fought through the crowd toward the stage. He could feel Emma's eyes on him, could even hear her unspoken words warning against his ears. "Fifty dollars to the lucky man!" the announcer cried over the applause. He handed five crisp tens to Gramp.

Gramp came down from the stage. Emma stomped up to him. "So!" she heaved. Gramp was quick on the draw. He peeled off a ten-spot and thrust it at her. "Here!"

"Wh-what's that for?" she gasped, a bright beam softening her anger. "Hush, money."

Emma took it with pleased bewilderment, then glowered again. "But the children—they're probably howling at home. And no one there to hush them."

"Took care of that, too," Gramp replied quickly. "Gave 'em each a dime before I left. Hush money. The gambler turned out to be a mighty good investment," he chuckled, and disappeared in the crowd.

BEWARE OF JUNKERS

A disarmed Germany will be harmless for a long time. But it will require the most stringent policing and supervision of Germany to watch these under-cover Nazi movements. In 1919 the French statesman Clemenceau said: "Beware of these Junkers; they will cheat you yet." We shall have to beware of these Nazis or they will cheat us yet.

VITAL TO LIFE

A starving animal can live after a loss of nearly all its fat, one-half of its protein, and a great portion of its body weight, but a loss of only one-fifth of the water of the body is fatal.

Here a CWAC There a CWAC

War whoops and tribal feathers play no part in the life of C.W.A.C. Private Dorothy Bernard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bernard of St. John, N.B., despite the fact that she admits proudly that she is a full-blooded Iroquois Indian. Grand-daughter of a chief, Dorothy is sure that she has lived a quiet, regular Canadian life. She is a graduate of a business college in Moncton, N.B., and worked as a secretary before her enlistment in March, 1944. When asked if her family had any particular tribal customs, Dorothy paused for a minute and then said, "I had a bear once. But Mother wouldn't let me keep it."

"We're so normal," she sighed.

Fashion— All in all the CWACs seem pretty satisfied with their "Khaki bonnets" . . . pictures of the latest Paris models shown in British newspapers elicited merriment and scorn from Miss Canada Overseas. Paris pointed out to its German captors that the well dressed Parisienne may still carry on her head "flowers, birds, spring and the blue skies" but—"It would take more than Germans to make her wear that horticultural exhibit," giggled one irreverent CWAC. "Give me a number from Estier's catalogue" volunteered another, and all agreed, "When we see these, we're glad we're in the C.W.A.C."

Reunion— Mother has followed her sons to the battle front. Pte. Minnie Howe, C.W.A.C. of Winnipeg, at present stationed at Canadian Military Headquarters, London, England, was the third member of her family to cross the Atlantic in this war. Her sons, Harry, and Jimmy are both with the Canadian Army. A fourth member of the fighting family, June, is with the C.W.A.C. in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Howe is a cook, and the Army is blessed, but the little family looks forward to the day when "Ma can bake an apple pie"—for four.

Travel—The thumb is mightier than the arch" is an adage that has been adopted by Cpl. Molly Engler, C.W.A.C. of Invermere, B.C. Reputed to be the most widely travelled member of the Corps, Molly gave truth to this adage in 1939 when she embarked on a hitch-hiking tour that carried her so far off the tourist path that the sight of a European was a novelty. A member of the C.W.A.C. since 1943, Molly received her education in Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, France and Italy. She has spent time in every country of Europe and has visited extensively in North Africa. She is now employed at National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa.

Total War Family— The Canadian family Robinson of Conn. Que., is as versatile as its Swiss counterpart—witness its "all out" war effort. Pearl and Bernice are a driver and clerk respectively with the C.W.A.C. Margery is a Nursing Sister, and brother W. T. Robinson is in the Merchant Marine. . . . Not to be outdone, Mother and Dad are busy with volunteer activities on the home front.

INVISIBLE WIRE Invisible platinum wire, so fine only its shadow can be seen, is being used experimentally in the General Electric Company's laboratory. The wire is 15,000,000ths of an inch thick. Approximately 25,000 strands would be needed to equal the cross-sectional area of a human hair.

Great Help To Doctors

Many Volunteers Endured Torture To Make Pain Map Possible

Twenty-six physicians, medical students and nurses who voluntarily endured having their flesh and bones pierced by drills and needles without benefit of anesthetic have made possible a pain map of the arms and legs.

The map helps doctors locate the point of origin of many undiagnosed pains. Often the hurt may be stopped quickly by a local anesthetic which hits squarely the centre of irritation.

Most painful operation in the map making was the drilling of the bones with a diamond-pointed shaft about the diameter of a darning needle. The pain was greatest as the diamond point passed through the thin membrane surrounding the bone. Least painful was the pushing of needles through the muscles.

The volunteers not only had to endure the pain but also to describe it accurately enough so it could be evaluated by others and charted. They broke into sweats. Their faces blanched. Some were nauseated. Some required medical attention for a couple of days thereafter.

The work was done by Dr. Verne T. Imman and Dr. J. B. de C. Saunders of San Francisco. Pain which originates deep in the flesh, or next to the bones, apparently radiates far up and down the arm or leg, sometimes the full length.

The arm may become sore from wrist to shoulder from a needle-point injury.

The map shows five long, irregular wedge-shaped areas of the arm and six in the leg. A deeply seated pain, Imman and Saunders report, is likely to radiate only within the particular area of its origin. The chart thus helps the physician to locate the origin, much as a national map with state boundaries simplifies the location of state points.

Finance Minister's Statement About Sugar For Canning Is Explained

In explanation of the statement made recently by Finance Minister Hiley in Ottawa that 23 pounds of sugar would be available for canning for each person in a household, this total includes not only canning sugar, but sugar which may be obtained with the "D" preserves coupons. Ten pounds of sugar will be available by using the first 10 "F" coupons in the old ration book, five of which may be used after May 25, the other five after July 6. There will be no expiry date on these coupons.

Thirteen pounds of sugar, to make up the total 23, may be obtained with the "D" preserves coupons, if these coupons have not already been used to purchase canned fruits and preserves. If a person uses the "D" coupons to buy preserves, then they cannot be used for sugar. But the overall total of sugar which could be bought is 23 pounds.

Surplus For Export

Arrangements Made To Send Canadian White Beans To Britain

Arrangements have been completed for export to Britain of the 1944 crop surplus of Canadian white beans, the special products board announced. The export price will be based on a price of $3.00 per bushel to the grower for No. 1 beans. This will mean that beans exported will be worth 50 cents a bushel more than beans sold at present established for the domestic market. It is hoped to provide at least 500,000 bushels for the export market.

NOW - VITAMIC RUBBER

FIRESTONE'S GREATEST CONTRIBUTION TO LONG TIRE LIFE AND MILEAGE

Firestone, pioneers of the balloon and high-speed tires, now make another contribution to advanced motoring . . . VITAMIC RUBBER . . . for longer tire life and mileage.

It is a well-known fact that adding small amounts of metals, such as chrome and tungsten, to steel greatly increases the strength and durability of the alloy produced.

In a similar manner, it has been found by Firestone research that the intimate mixing with rubber of small amounts of a new scientific discovery, "Vitamin," imparts long-sought properties to the rubber. As in the alloy, the new rubber compound . . . VITAMIC RUBBER . . . is greatly improved in strength, wearability, and resistance to heat and aging.

All Firestone tires are now made with Vitaminc Rubber. This added extra value, together with Gum-Dipping and Safety Locked Cords, is all the more reason why you should insist on Firestone tires when you obtain a Tire Ration Permit.

Nations Seem To Be Slightly Mixed In This War

The Empire Digest offers the following information:

There are now 33 United Nations and nine Axis Nations.

Germany is the only Axis Nation at war with all 33 United Nations.

None of the United Nations is at war with all nine Axis Nations.

Australia is the only United Nation to declare war on Vichy France.

The fighting French are at war only with Germany and Japan.

India and Norway are at war only with Germany.

Brazil, India, Norway, Greece and Russia are the only United Nations not at war with Japan.

The United States is at war with Albania, but not Finland; Great Britain with Finland, but not Albania. Thus, although the United States and Great Britain are both fighting eight out of the nine Axis Nations, there is a difference in which ones.

FRUSTRATED

A great nerve specialist was placed next to a talkative and inquisitive maiden lady, who bored him excessively with her questions.

"Tell me, won't you, what was your greatest ambition as a child, and have you attained it?" she asked.

The specialist looked at her sadly, and said: "Madam, I regret to say I have never attained my boyhood ambition."

"And what was it?"

"To turn, my great ambition was to throw an egg into an electric fan!"

K. W. Scheele, Swedish chemist, first found glycerine in 1779.

VITAMIC RUBBER is produced by adding Vitamins to the rubber compound. It gives extra protection against weather checking and wear, thus keeping the rubber tough and lively.

Autumn-Sown Grasses
and Legumes

There are, no doubt, large areas in the prairie provinces which will be devoted to straight grain farming for many years to come. In most districts, however, a reasonable acreage of grass, or grass and alfalfa mixed, is good for the farmer and good for the farm.

A great many farmers have been discouraged because attempts to
"get a catch" of grass have failed.
Failure is commonly due to (a) sowing too deeply, (b) no protection from soil drifting and (c) sowing at the wrong time. In some years and some districts, the use of pure crops has also caused disappointment.

Since the autumn is, alas, not very far away, and since autumn-sowing of grasses is becoming more and more popular, we think it wise to draw attention to some experimental work done at Saskatoon and published in "Scientific Agriculture"
(Vol. 23, No. 7). The following statements are derived from this publication and the authors are
Dr. W. J. White and Mr. W. H.
Homer.

1. Sweet clover should not be sown in autumn.
2. Crested wheat grass, brome grass, slender wheat grass and alfalfa may be sown in autumn if—
(a) Sowing is early enough to establish good-sized seedlings (late August to early September), or
(b) Just before freeze-up, so that seeds don't germinate until spring.
3. Better results are obtained by sowing in stubble or weeds than on bare summerfallow.

Since conditions vary from place to place, it is wise to consult the nearest experimental farm or the local agricultural representative.

TIME 'BOMBS

To be outgoing may not always be easy but to be easy going these days is "always out".

Only a new era of human living will make it worth while for so many to give their lives.

The real clash these days is not between right and left but between right and wrong. And the answer is not compromising on a middle way but going all the way to put things right.

Army training supplies our soldiers with the "know how" of this fight. But only home training can supply them with the "know why."

Neither tiredness nor business is an excuse for lesser living or for lesser caring.

More men like to seek the truth than like when they find it.

Some know not what they do Others do not what they know.

WHAT IS WANTED
You can remedy this critical paper shortage by saving every scrap of Waste Paper, namely:
wrapping paper—store bags—
cardboard—cartons—corrugated board—old magazines and books—envelopes and letters—newspapers. These represent the raw material for making vitally needed Paper containers.

HOW TO DO IT
Be securely in separate bundles. (The little time you take will save thousands of man hours.) Then dispose of it through your local voluntary Salvage Committee or other War Voluntary Organization, or sell it through any known trade channels, your pedlar, dealer or others. The important thing is your Waste Paper moving to the mills.
